THE GLOBAL GOALS
For Sustainable Development

2015 marks the global celebration of the 70th anniversary of the United Nations, which aims to honour the historic breadth of the Organisation's development, security and human rights work. The "UN 70 Belarus Express for Sustainable Development Goals" is a joint initiative of the United Nations in Belarus and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of Belarus which aims to bring together UN agencies, UN member-states, Belarus official representatives, civil society, public and private partners, youth, people with disabilities, vulnerable groups and the many individual women and men working in common cause to enable a strong UN to realize a better world.

We will have more than 250 activities focused on the 70th Anniversary of the UN and Sustainable Development Goals in eight cities from 23-30 October. The UN 70 Express will visit 7 Belarusian cities in 7 days where thousands of visitors and guests are expected on the grounds for the events. A rich programme of activities is planned throughout the days in Minsk, Hrodna, Baranavičy, Brest, Homiel, Mahilioŭ, Viciebsk and on board of the UN 70 Express including Sustainable Development Declaration signing by local authorities, workshops, stands, guided tours, lectures, movie screenings, concerts, dance performances and activities for children, adults, persons with disabilities and more.

UN 70 Express will deliver our global message to the Belarusian citizens around the country. It is a unique chance for us all to see into the future of our planet and the achievement of the 17 Sustainable Development Goals adopted this year by the United Nations General Assembly. As According to the UN Secretary-General, "the year 2015 is a once-in-a generation opportunity. Our goal is to put people at the center to end poverty, leave no one behind and build lives of dignity for all."

Message from Sanaka Samarasinha, UN Resident Coordinator

I have a dream!» - proclaimed Martin Luther King to his countrymen and women some fifty years ago. He dreamt that one day his country will change for the better. But dreams can also change the world. Almost three quarters of a century ago just such a dream was borne out of the ashes of the worst human catastrophe the world had ever experienced. The dream became a cause because it was far greater than its source. The cause became a movement when it embraced diversity in the pursuit of a common purpose. The movement became a global transformation because it united peoples and nations in the simplest of human aspirations: the quest for a better life for all. The United Nations 70 years ago was just such a dream.

But as wars continue to displace millions around us, poverty continues to permeate across continents, terrorism endangers the fabric of our global society, diseases spread easily across national borders and climate change threatens our very existence, one could be forgiven for wondering whether the determination of our forefathers that a global partnership would bring peace and prosperity to everyone is nothing but an unattainable and ill-defined aspiration. Yet despite many challenges and through much adversity “we the peoples” of the United Nations still zealously cling to the belief that what binds us together as one civilization must be preserved at any cost. Survival of humanity depends on it. “A stronger UN, a better world” we say with conviction.

Belarus as a founding member of the United Nations and one of its most robust proponents through both its words and its actions has helped to make the UN stronger on the global stage over the years. At the same time, effective collaboration in-country between the UN and the Government and other stakeholders, combined with the generous support of member states has seen tangible benefits to some of the most disadvantaged and vulnerable populations in the country.

In September this year, on the eve of the 70th Anniversary of the UN, all the world’s leaders committed to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). If achieved, they would bring transformational change of historic proportions to billions of us on the planet now, as well as untold future generations. Millions around the globe helped shape these 17 Goals through a conversation that defined a compact to create the world we want. Millions more now need to work together to make these goals a reality for those in need.

The UN70 Belarus Express for SDGs was a shared dream of the UN and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Belarus. But it too, like the UN, itself has proven to be a dream far greater than its source. It is a journey we believe that will shape a cause through a myriad conversations among people who don’t always talk to each other and prompt a vigorous movement that will result in a robust partnership for sustainable and transformational development change for the people of Belarus and beyond: a change that brings peace, happiness and prosperity for people and planet. We determined that the SDGs for the people, by the people and of the people now could only be achieved if we jointly charter a course for its implementation. A mammoth national effort is needed if we are to leave no one behind in this noble but challenging venture.

The impact of the work we are doing together in Belarus is well documented. The statistics and numbers are abundantly clear. But it is the anecdotal evidence that shows us how together we are making a real difference in the lives of those who most need a difference. The difference is what you see written on the faces and hear in the simple words of men, women and children you meet around the country.

It is in the story of the young woman at the methadone substitution therapy clinic in Hrodna set up by the UN and the government with funding from the Global Fund who dares to hope because she now has a job and can take care of her children without worrying about how to steal someone's purse to get her next fix. It is in the voice of the grandmother in Lida who proudly speaks of her ambition to turn her simple farmstead into an eco-tourism business with the help of a USAID funded UNDP project. It is on the smiling faces of the young children whose parents had been exposed to Chernobyl playing in a school in Hommel, which had been helped by a EU funded UNICEF and UNDP initiative or the equally happy faces of children who have been prevented from life debilitating injuries through a Russian funded UNICEF project. It is in the determined words of the Orthodox priest and a member of his congregation who started a shelter for battered women with the help of a SIDA funded UNFPA initiative. It is palpable in the instant camaraderie between refugee children from Afghanistan and Belarusian children who have been brought together by UNHCR and a Belarusian NGO to showcase their talents. It is in the courage of the HIV positive young man who tells of how UNAIDS, WHO and UNDP have helped him personally fight stigma and gave him a sense of purpose so much so that he decided to put his face on a billboard in Minsk to raise awareness and fight discrimination. It is in the moving voice of health and social workers supported by UNDP and IOM who helped a victim of human trafficking escape imprisonment and rape over more than 26 years. Her body and mind had all but been completely destroyed but they helped her to reconnect with her family, access health services, find a job and begin the slow, arduous process of trying to live a normal life. It is obvious in the unbridled euphoria of more than half a million people living with disabilities when with UN support the Government signed on to the Convention of the Rights of People Living With Disabilities last month. It is in the beautiful sights and sounds of the numerous forests, lakes, wetlands and bogs one visits around Belarus that are teeming with endangered species of flora and fauna because of the many partnerships for conservation between the Global Environment Facility, the UN, the government, civil society and local communities, including young people and many marginalized groups.

No doubt we have made a difference in Belarus – all of us together. It is the ownership of the people and the communities, the leadership of Government, the generosity of donors and commitment of NGOs that made the difference. Let us on this OUR 70th Anniversary of OUR United Nations pledge to ourselves and each other to continue with renewed vigor to face the challenges and opportunities of a shrinking world in the years ahead. For it is in this ever more connected world that we need to be ever more vigilant and more united than ever.

And so, both in a spirit of celebration remembering our rich 70-year collective past, but also in a spirit of reflection of the ambitious goals we have set for ourselves until 2030, we invite you to undertake this historic journey around Belarus with us. Consider it is an unique opportunity for us to come together on and off the train in a spirit of tolerance to reaffirm our faith in the dignity and worth of the human person no matter age, sex, ethnicity, degree of disability, national origin, religious persuasion, social, economic or political standing. Let us seek and embrace diversity of all kind. For it is only then we become more understanding of others and they of us that we evolve as a human race towards a world of lasting peace, respectful of human rights and sustainable development for all building resilient nations and empowered lives.

Everyone's voice is important. Everyone's dream must be celebrated. Everyone's fears must be addressed. Everyone's vulnerability must be recognized. Everyone's potential contribution must be accounted. Through a mutually respectful dialogue that inherently seeks to understand each other we will no doubt create a better world for our children than we found ourselves. The world we want through the United Nations we have.

Welcome aboard on the journey of our lives!

Sanaka Samarasinha
UN Resident Coordinator

The writer and the United Nations in Belarus wish to thank the President and Government of the Republic of Belarus, the Foreign Ministry, The Belarus Railways, numerous other central and local state agencies, many donors and several private sector partners who provided generous funding for the initiative and our NGO partners and volunteers who through their conviction, commitment and collaborative spirit turned a mere idea into a movement, which is now clearly evolving into transformational change through the UN70 Belarus Express for SDGs.

Message from Vladimir Makei, Foreign Minister

Today it is difficult to imagine the world without the United Nations. Since 1945, the United Nations has developed into a unique international organization with a universal mandate. In his speech at the Sustainable Development Summit on 27 September 2015 in New York, Mr. Aleksandr Lukashenko stated that "sustainable development of any country is impossible without peace and security. The Belarusian people learned this enduring truth from their life experience."

This year marks the 70th anniversary of the UN's founding and we celebrate not only the United Nations important milestone, but also the huge progress that the world including the Republic of Belarus has made towards the Millennium Development Goals and commits to go even further with the new Sustainable Development Goals.

Belarus was lucky to be among founders of the United Nations and since the entry of the UN Charter into force on 24 October 1945, it has thoroughly followed its noble principles and objectives. This year we step forward together with the joint initiative "United Nations 70 Belarus Express for Sustainable Development Goals" that will bring the UN and the newly adopted Sustainable Development agenda to the Belarusian people in every region. This is an unprecedented 7-day event for the country.

Vladimir Makei
Foreign Minister

Welcome aboard!
